

Empower your team

with a technology plan that can power your mission

When doing good is the bottom line.

Sometimes a corporate approach to technology planning “misses the point” for a mission-driven organization. If this sounds familiar, we want you to know that we get it.

PCPC has an accomplished history working with growing non-profits in New York City and beyond. We understand the who, what, when and where of 501c3 organizational structure, from the funding cycle to compliancy. Your good work deserves to flourish with a solid tech foundation.

You guys have been an amazing business partner from the get-go. Working with PCPC has had a positive, transformational impact on our organization.

William Popeleski, COO, Accion East - Helping Small Business Owners Achieve Their Dreams

What sets PCPC apart as an IT services team for non-profit?

Culture

Non-profit business structure and culture can seem like foreign territory to people accustomed to traditional business. We are versed in shaping IT solutions in the non-profit space and we love doing it!

Collaboration

The IT strategy writing process is a crucial building block that takes time and energy. We work directly with your board and your team to ensure your plan is sustainable, safe, user-focused, and on budget.

Cause

Our team is proud to bring strong solutions to your non-profit, as part of your mission's success. We believe we are doing our part when we support the tools your team needs to do good in the world.

Compliance

If you've ever been through an Accounting IT Audit, or tackled HIPAA compliance requirements, you know it's no walk in the park. With our experience, we can bring clarity to your compliance process.

Continuity

When the power's out, it's tough to keep your good work in motion. PCPC offers strategic solutions for workflow and business continuity, from data backup and recovery, to downtime planning and resources.

Cost

While technology is a must-have investment, we leverage every opportunity to make 501c3 budget lines as painless as possible. Your growth, funding path, and budget thresholds are baked into the plan.

Call us today to set up a consultation at 212-315-0809

